

ADULTS-ONLY JUNK

Food ads banned until after 9pm

JUNK food adverts on telly will be banned before 9pm in a bid to stop kids getting fat.

And tough new "traffic light" labels will be put on packaging to try to curb the nation's unhealthy eating habits.

Sugar, salt and fat-laden foods such as sweets and burgers will be labelled red to show they should be eaten only occasionally, while vegetables would be marked green to encourage shoppers.

Foods such as cheese, high in fat

■ by STEPHEN RIGLEY

but nutritious, will be labelled amber.

Health Secretary Dr John Reid will unveil the far-reaching plans tomorrow.

But critics say the Government White Paper does not go far enough because food manufacturers and advertisers will be left to draw up a voluntary code.

The attack on adverts comes after a fierce campaign by parents angry that under-fives are being bombarded by cartoon characters and catchy jingles encouraging them to eat unhealthy snacks.

Dr Reid was expected to ban junk food ads during children's TV shows but he is set to go further after watchdog Ofcom showed 70% of viewing by kids aged four to 15 takes place between 6pm and 9pm.

Scale

A source said: "To have maximum effect, broadcasting limits need to be complemented by restrictions on advertising at the point of sale and on packaging."

Traffic light labels could be used by Ofcom to devise a sliding scale for TV ads.

Red light foods are likely to be banned during children's programming, with controls progressively relaxed for programmes that both children and adults might watch.

The grading is likely to be phased out after the watershed.

Last night Jeremy Preston, director of the industry-funded Food Advertising Unit, said: "If this is about the demonisation of individual products, that's wrong, because what we should be looking at is what constitutes a healthy diet."

RED ALERT: Dr Reid

Hunger shame

At least two million Brits are suffering from malnutrition, experts warned last night.

But a new group, Patients 1st For Nutrition, is being launched to tackle the problem.

Up to half of the patients in care or residential homes are thought to suffer from the problem.

Malnutrition can have very serious consequences - leading to breathing difficulties, a greater risk of infection plus reduced muscle strength and fatigue.

Col whips his snake out for Jol

HELL-RAISING Colin Farrell shakes his snake at Angelina Jolie on a crazy German TV show. But this time the Hollywood pin-up had a REAL snake in his hands. And she had a slippery customer of her own to deal with as the huge snake curled around her neck. Colin, 28, and Angelina, 29, were appearing on Europe's most successful game show, Wetten Dass...? (Bet It?). Other celebs who appeared at the weekend included Tina Turner, Pele and Renee Zellweger.

DANCER GETS THE PUSH

GERI Halliwell replaced a dancer on the promotion trail for her new single after she found he'd worked with Emma Bunton.

The raunchy redhead, 32, wowed fans at London's G-A-Y on Saturday with a Roman-themed set and string of costume changes.

But one male shape-throwing talent, who'd danced with Geri's old Spice Girls buddy, was missing.

A source revealed: "The guy was surprised when he got a call from his agent telling him his services were no longer required after he'd already done CDUK and Top Of The Pops with Geri."

"He knew it wasn't anything to do with his dancing skills. Then he was told it was because he'd danced for Emma."

The chap in question also strutted his stuff with Kylie, 36, when she released Can't Get You Out Of My Head.

My source said: "Geri has worked so hard on her new album that she wants people to focus on her new songs and not her past.

Bang

"She's still mates with Emma but would like a team around her that are focusing on this project 100%."

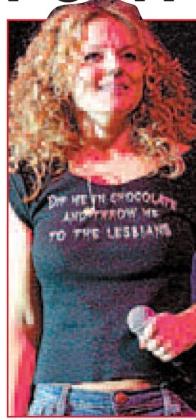

Geri looks set to return to the charts with big bang.

The single Ride It has already made its mark on the club charts and is definitely set for a top five placing when it's released next Monday.

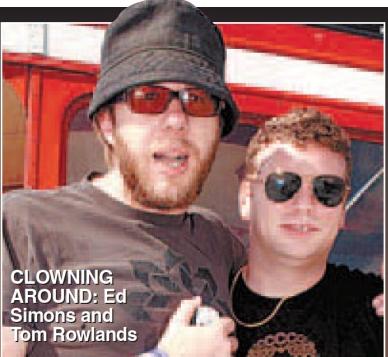

I reckon it could even hit No1.

More than 1,000 people had to be turned away when the G-A-Y club night could hold no more eager pop punters.

"She's looking and sounding better than ever."

LES DANCE: Geri at G-A-Y

CLOWNING AROUND: Ed Simons and Tom Rowlands

Q-TIPPED FOR TOP

THE Chemical Brothers are basing their new video on stylish French flick La Haine.

I've got hold of the treatment for the promo to Galvanise, which isn't out until January and features 33-year-old US rapper Q-Tip.

The track is described as "a full-blooded, pulsing dancefloor anthem" and the video "La Haine meets clowns in da hood".

A young bloke heads for a night on the town decked out in full clown make-up.

Meeting up with his b-boy pals in their baggy tracks and hooded tops the clown lad and his mates get chased for not paying their bus fare and blag it into a club when bouncers are too busy checking the guest list for other punters.

Cool

A dance-off ensues in the club and the video ends with the three clowns being marched out of the venue and handed over to the police after impressing all inside with their ultra-cool moves.

The sensible clown has a tear running down his face but the lead guy is grinning like a Cheshire cat.

All this ties in nicely with the Chemical Brothers' new album, Push The Button, which is due out on January 24. Insiders predict the new Ed Simons and Tom Rowlands record will change the face of dance music for 2005.

■ DESPITE scaling the dizzy heights at the top of the charts with their self-titled debut album, II Divo aren't looking forward to switching on the Christmas lights in London's Oxford Street tonight. The stage is 20ft high and Seb suffers from vertigo. A source said: "There will be a trial run before hand and if he can't do it, a call to Paul McKenna for some hypnotherapy may have to be made."

Tara: I want curves

TELLY beauty Tara Palmer-Tomkinson has revealed she would rather be curvy than skinny.

The former It Girl, who will be presenting ITV2's coverage of the new series of I'm A Celebrity Get Me Out of Here! admitted she doesn't think being thin is sexy.

Tara, 32, who also hates her muscular arms, added: I'm actually attempting to gain weight at the moment - I eat around 10 times a day.

"The minute I lose any weight, I look tired and drawn. It's just not sexy to be too thin."

"I definitely want something people can grab hold of. Look at my backside ... there's nothing there. I certainly need more junk in my trunk."

STAND-IN DOCS ON £1,200 A NIGHT

STAND-IN doctors are earning up to £1,200 a night - because GPs don't want to work unsocial hours.

Primary care trusts, which arrange cover for out-of-hours calls, are having to offer huge wages to get doctors to work the graveyard shifts.

GPs used to sort out their own night and weekend cover, but now they can opt out altogether.

And doctors who are prepared to work can demand more than £100 an hour.

Rural areas are worst hit because of a lack of medics and travel problems. But experts are concerned the extra pay is diverting money from reducing waiting lists and buying hospital equipment.

In Wales, the Powys Local Health Board is paying doctors £108 an hour to cover shifts at Machynlleth in Montgomeryshire. John Howard, chief officer of Montgomeryshire Community Health Council, says the board's hands are tied under the new opt-out arrangements.

He said: "This level of pay cannot be sustained. It is clearly an inefficient use of limited NHS funds."

Busy

Across the country health authorities are being forced to increase their hourly rates from £40 to £90. The British Medical Association says nine out of 10 doctors are choosing to opt out of night shifts.

But Dr Andrew Dearden, a Cardiff GP, said: "These doctors are busy, highly qualified professionals doing very unsocial hours."

CALENDAR HIT: Williams

Robbie is THE hot date

GOLDEN boy David Beckham's days as a top hunk are over, reckon fans who buy pin-up calendars.

They have made singer Robbie Williams, 30, their No.1 for 2005 – with Beck sliding to fifth in the sales charts.

It's the first time the 29-year-old England captain – the second best seller in 2004 – has been out of the top three calendar studs.

Last year's No.1, Sir Cliff Richard, 64, is second. He has been in the top three for 25 years.

Surprise

"It's early days," said a spokeswoman for calendar firm Danilo. "But David Beckham's position is a surprise."

There's worse news for singers Ronan Keating and Gareth Gates – both are out of the charts.

• The top 10 based on sales figures so far are: 1 Robbie Williams, 2 Sir Cliff Richard, 3 Jonny Wilkinson, 4 Elvis Presley, 5 David Beckham, 6 Will Young, 7 Eminem, 8 Michael Owen, 9 Colin Farrell, 10 Justin Timberlake.

I SAY! FRED GAMBLES SHOP AWAY

BUMBLING Fred Elliott is set to sensationaly gamble away his family butcher's shop.

And, to rub it in, he loses the lot in a game of poker with arch-rival Mike Baldwin.

Coronation Street favourite Fred (John Savident, 64) plays for high stakes after starting a card school at the Rovers Return.

He soon finds himself in a tussle with knicker factory boss Mike (Johnny Briggs, 69).

Gauntlet

As other Corrie card sharks including mechanic Tommy Harris and Underworld manager Danny Baldwin (Bradley Walsh, 44) back out, Fred throws down the gauntlet when Mike offers to play him for a share of their businesses.

After a series of nail-biting poker hands, pub boss Fred loses and is left with a giant hangover.

A Corrie source said: "Fred is simply thunderstruck at his own folly."

"His son Ashley has no idea he's lost his inheritance and Fred has no idea how he is going to be break the news."

The poker game is the latest battle in a feud that erupted after Mike stole businesswoman Penny King from Fred.

During the first poker game, Tommy (Thomas Craig, 42) loses his son's computer money and vows to win it back.

But in the rematch, it is Fred and Mike who go head-to-head.

The source added: "Fred wants to wipe the smirk off Mike's face."

"And he is stunned when Mike puts up his share of the factory against the butcher's shop. Mike's cock-a-hoop when he wins and Fred's horrified as his old adversary starts making plans to alter the shop."

Fred is overcome by guilt but eventually has to confess to Ashley (Steven Arnold, 29).

"Viewers will be wondering whether this is the end of an era," said the source.

Meanwhile sexy Sam Hunter (Kim Medcalf, 30) will return from honeymoon to announce that she no longer regards herself as a Mitchell.

Last night an insider said: "Sam is putting her husband Andy first.

"It's bound to end in tears. Sam's devotion to Andy could well put her life in danger."

OVER THE MOON: Alfie celebrates his side's goal

SEX PLOT: Sadie King

Romping Sadie's exposed

EMMERDALE seductress Sadie King will be facing sex-blackmail threats from village bad-boy Cain Dingle. Yobbo Cain (Jeff Hordley, 35) breaks into her home and finds the randy married woman is conducting a torrid affair with romeo-mechanic Robert Sugden (Karl Davis, 22).

And he'll do his utmost to spoil their lusty liaisons by demanding money and favours from blue-eyed sexpot Sadie (Patsy Kensit, 36).

MAKE YOUR "ONE DAY" TODAY WITH THE ONE ACCOUNT

The One account's great flexibility got couple on the move

Rhett and Piera switched their mortgage to the One account, and used the subsequent savings to buy a larger home.

Rhett, 31, and his wife Piera, 27, switched their mortgage on their three-bedroom semi in Church Langley, Essex, three years ago.

The One account is a mortgage and bank account rolled into one. It brings your current account, savings account, and other debts under one roof helping you manage your money together so you can focus on reaching your goals.

Great savings

The One account allows homeowners to use their income and savings against their mortgage. Paying your salary and any other cash into the One account reduces your outstanding balance and helps you clear your mortgage earlier. As interest is calculated daily this could save you money over the term of your loan. "Combining our savings into the One account instantly reduced our mortgage and our monthly repayment bill," Rhett says.

Flexibility

Rhett also loves the flexibility of the One account. It allows him to borrow cash against the value of the family home up to pre-agreed limits. "I can get at my cash whenever I want, within my overall spending limit, giving me total freedom," Rhett says. Any additional borrowing will be secured on your home, meaning an increase in repayments or an extension of the term depending on how you use the account.

Pay off debts

The One account also allowed

Rhett and Piera to pay off personal loans AND their credit cards. "We had the facility to clear everything with cash from the One account. Now our only debt is the mortgage, and the interest rate is really competitive." Typically you may find yourself paying higher rates for loans and credit card debt. But with a One account you'll pay one mortgage style interest rate on everything. Just remember that any additional debt will be secured on your home.

Pay more some months and less in others

The One account also lets you manage your mortgage your way. So long as you keep within your agreed borrowing limit and pay the account off by retirement, you can pay more some months and less in others.

Rhett was keen to reduce his mortgage as soon as possible, he says. "I really enjoyed seeing my mortgage debt fall every month." Reducing their mortgage allowed them to trade up to a larger property following the birth of their daughter Mia.

Bigger house

In August, they bought a four-bedroom townhouse in Church Langley. "We couldn't have afforded it without the One account," Rhett says. By combining their savings and overpaying each month, Rhett and Piera quickly reduced what they owed on their house. When they sold it they were able to use the equity to be able to afford their new house. "The One account has made our lives so much easier," Rhett says.

THE 4 ESSENTIAL ONE ACCOUNT FACTS A SMALL STEP FOR YOU. A GIANT STEP FOR YOUR FINANCES.

1 Save thousands in interest

Until you spend it, your income automatically reduces what you owe on your mortgage. As interest is calculated daily, you save money, it can add up to thousands of pounds over the lifetime of your mortgage. Eg. If you have a £70,000 mortgage, a home worth £120,000 and an income of £35,000 per year over 25 years – Simply paying your salary into the One account saves you £4,251 in interest. Leaving an extra £100 in your One account each month means you'll pay off your mortgage 8 years and 5 months earlier and save £25,800 in interest. The overall cost for comparison is 6.2% APR variable. The actual rate payable will depend on your circumstances.

2 Transfer any existing expensive debt

No matter what you use the money for, everything you borrow is charged at the same low mortgage rate. You can transfer any existing expensive debt, instantly cutting your monthly interest bill. This will mean an increase in the total amount secured on your home which may mean an increase in repayments or an extension of the term depending on how you use the account.

3 Repay the way that's right for you

Because your money's together, the One account lets you manage your mortgage your way. So long as you keep within your agreed borrowing limit and pay the account off by retirement, you can pay more some months and less in others. Your monthly statement shows you what you need to do to keep on track.

4 Bank the way you want

CHARLIE HE'S BRITAIN'S MOST

CATCHPOLE SWITCHED-ON TELLY CRITIC

Sopranos ends on a high note

ALL Due Respect was the title of the mesmeric finale to the fifth series of The Sopranos (Monday, C4).

And as if to demonstrate – belatedly – their own respect for this modern masterpiece of American drama, Channel 4's schedulers moved the episode forward a whole 30 minutes, so that it finished not much after midnight.

Something about being grateful for small mercies springs to mind.

Hard core Sopranos fans who stayed the distance were rewarded with a story that was almost Shakespearian (apart from the f-words) in its intensity, as Tony S Agonised over whether he should continue to protect his renegade cousin Tony B or hand him over to rival mobsters Johnny Sack and Phil Leotardo. He gathered the gang and declared: "We are a family, and even in his f***ed-up day and age, that means something."

Silvia Dante saw things rather differently.

"With all due respect," he said "it's about you don't wanna eat s***t from Johnny, you don't wanna bow down. Frankly, you've got a problem with authority. There's seven deadly sins, and yours is pride."

Tony's response was to explain, in his own colourful way, that it was lonely at the top.

He told Silvio: "With all due respect, you've got no f***ing idea what it's like to be Number One. Every decision you make affects every facet of every other f***ing thing. It's too much to deal with, almost. And in the end, you're completely alone with it."

After becoming engrossed in a History Channel documentary about Hitler's general Erwin Rommel, who the narrator said had a sixth sense that enabled him to size up any situation to his advantage, Tony (James Gandolfini) went to the remote farmhouse where Tony B was hiding out and blew half his head away with a shotgun, without saying a word.

As ever, a chillingly dark storyline was shot through with sudden bursts of terrific humour – a combination that completely eludes your average British crime series.

NUMBER ONE: Tony Soprano

BEST bits of 2D-TV
(Monday, ITV1): The Rooneys as The Flintstones (Wayne was in bed with a slopo-saurus).

Mobile phones playing ring tones auditioning for The X-Factor (the winning phone was nicked, prompting Simon Cowell to say: "Still, it was around longer than Gareth Gates").

And Osama bin Laden's workout video ("Let's put the fun into fundamentalism! It's a fatwa on fat")

Someone somewhere probably found that one offensive.
I sincerely hope so, anyway.

Special Kay

PETER Kay – the backlash begins. People are already saying that Max And Paddy's Road To Nowhere (Friday, C4) isn't as funny as Phoenix Nights or That Peter Kay Thing.

(This is what's known in the music business as "third album syndrome".)

And they're absolutely right. It isn't. Not yet, anyway.

The first instalment of the adventures of Bolton's bone-headed night-club doormen (aka Lord Love Rocket and his mongy mate Max), now trailing around the north-west in their camper van, was a scene-setter that sketched in the characters for the benefit of those few unfortunate souls who somehow missed out on Phoenix Nights.

So it wasn't packed with quite so many laugh-out-loud moments. It still made for a far, far funnier half-hour than any British sitcom I've seen since... well, since Phoenix Nights, come to think of it.

Trust me, it's going to be an exhilarating ride. You probably know this already, but Max (Kay) is naive, overly sensitive and utterly useless with women.

Paddy (Kay's co-writer Patrick McGuinness) is brash, cocky, loud and absolutely certain that every female he meets who's under the age of 60 is simply gagging for it.

We first saw the odd couple dressed up as dancing bears, supposedly trying to attract customers to the White Cliffs Shopping Centre but actually carrying out a plan to steal a widescreen plasma TV for their mobile home (they got one, but it turned out not to have any speakers).

One of the advantages of watching anything by Peter Kay on video is that you can freeze-frame the tape and pick up on wonderful little sight gags that flash by otherwise unnoticed. For example the small print at the bottom

HAT'S MY GIRL: Peter scores in Max And Paddy's Road To Nowhere

CLANGER OF THE WEEK

IN Lawless, Trevor Eve as DI John Paxton jumped off Newcastle's Tyne Bridge and was next seen lying in the mud of the River Blyth. This meant he swam a good 15 miles through the North Sea. Wearing shoes, too.

Like Mrs S. Kirsopp of Prudhoe, Northumberland, you could win £50 by sending any gaffes you spot to TV Clangers, Daily Star, 10 Lower Thames Street, London EC3R 6EN. Use a postcard, the back of a sealed envelope, fax to 0871 4347921 or e-mail charlie.catchpole@dailystar.co.uk of a sign outside the shopping centre read: "Sterling, euros and immigration vouchers welcome." Kay does not do political correctness. Clumsily trying to win over a blonde he met in a club, Max said: "I'm a bit of a romantic. I like a girl with special needs."

Blonde: "Who is she?"
Max: "Oh, no. I don't mean a girl with special needs. I mean I like a girl to have special needs – wants." He tapped his head and burbled: "I like a girl to have a bit up here, a bit more spirit. I'd like to take our relationship to a different level. A spirit level."

Max and Paddy were got up as sailors. Paddy had said girls loved men in uniform.

"Do they?" said Max, doubtfully. "Let's go out dressed as a couple of Nazis, then. See how far we get."

Paddy woke up minus his wallet. It transpired that the girls were con artists who specialised in seducing sailors and robbing them.

They were known locally as the Belgrano Sisters. Work that one out for yourselves.

The scene alone was funnier than a month of French And Saunders – Paddy teaching Max to dance under the trees at a caravan park.

It included an inspired spoof of Patrick Swayze and Jennifer Grey cavorting in Dirty Dancing that made me laugh until I ached.

And finally, a word from the show's sponsors – wonderful radio Chorley FM.

Slogan: "Coming In Your Ears".

Priceless.

NICKY BYRNE EXCLUSIVE:

I wouldn't be the sort of

WESTLIFE star Nicky Byrne has a secret to confess – he's a fan of fluffy chick-lit.

The hot hunk even admits to shedding the odd tear when he gets to the end of a soppy girlie bit!

Mind you, there's only one author he reads when he fancies putting his feet up with a good book and a pint of the black stuff – and he's got good reason to be her No1 fan.

Family man Nicky is thrilled that his sister-in-law Cecilia Ahern, 21, has scored a big hit with her debut novel P.S. I Love You.

In fact the 26-year-old even skipped back to Dublin – taking a break from promoting Westlife's sixth album, a collection of Rat Pack covers called Allow Us To Be Frank – to support her book launch.

For him Cecilia is another talented woman in his life, in addition to his gorgeous wife Georgina, daughter of the Irish PM Bertie Ahern.

Nicky says: "Obviously, being a guy I'd never usually read chick-lit. But as it's Cecilia, I took her first book along on flights when I had a few hours to myself. 'Many times I had tears in my eyes and I had to cover up. There's me trying to be a hard lad, then that happens! But her story really touched me."

Pride

His confession is testament to the boyband pin-up's family loyalty. He unashamedly gushes with pride when talking about Georgina, 26, who he's been with for 10 years.

The pair married in France last year and have so far managed to avoid the pitfalls of showbiz marriages.

Nicky easily shrugs off any suggestion they may have wed too young. "I think it's cool being a husband at 26," he says.

"People say it's a bit young but when you've been with someone for a long time, you love them and know it's right, why wait any longer?"

"When I met Georgina at school, I went home and told my mum I'd met the girl I wanted to marry. I remember mum saying, 'OK son, but you're only 14.' I always knew Georgina was the one."

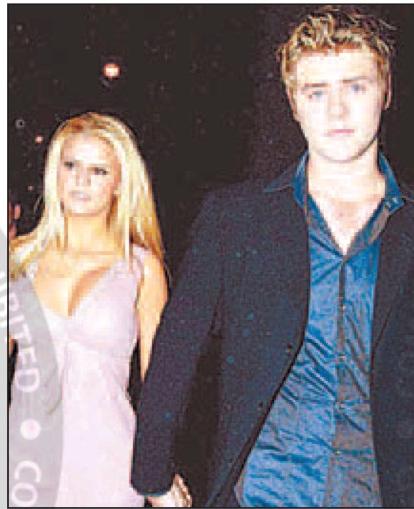

There's no doubt the loved-up couple make a perfect pair. Nicky is looking forward to being a dad but says he is keen that they enjoy a bit more time as just a couple before having kids.

Nicky continues: "When it happens that'll be the icing on the cake but it's not going to be in the near future."

"After seeing how difficult it was for Brian –

COUPLING: Nicky fell early for Georgina at school. Below, Brian McFadden and Kerry.

a difficult time for Brian. Kids are involved. I wouldn't wish that on anyone."

"I'm so happy that I'm not in his position. It was hard for him having children and travelling while Kerry's career took off."

"We would've hired a nanny to keep him in the band. You can't use the word impossible 'cos look at Ronan Keating, he's got two kids. Some people can do it, Brian and Kerry couldn't. It's very sad."

While Nicky is enjoying Westlife's new musical direction, Georgina has plans of her own. And one of them is whipping Nicky into shape.

He explains: "We're having a gym built at the house. When I played for Leeds, before Westlife, I did so much running and I miss that."

"Georgina's doing a fitness course and has her sights set on being a personal trainer. She can set her sights on me and give me muscles. When she gets being in a band and having two kids – I wouldn't want that kind of pressure. Besides there are lots of things we'd like to do first.

"If the band ended tomorrow, I'd take a holiday and just be selfish for a while."

Busy

Nicky sighs sadly when it comes to the subject of Brian McFadden's marriage breakdown.

He admits he's relieved he's found his soulmate in business graduate Georgina and is sure the same will never happen to them.

He says: "It's great that Georgina and I can balance our lives to be together. A lot of people have busy schedules and their relationships break up."

"We've never had time away from each other. It's me into the gym she'll certainly show me a thing or two.

"Georgina's also done some modelling and went down the catwalk at this year's London Fashion Week. I thought, 'Please God, don't let her fall.'

"There's speculation that an English modelling company are interested in her. If the opportunity comes up, then she'll certainly look at it."

Risk

Nicky is as proud of his wife as he is of Westlife, who release a new live DVD this week.

He says: "The new album was a big risk for us. And this DVD celebrates our most successful and lucrative tour - we only had to split it four ways!"

"We filmed it at The Globe in Stockholm, one of the biggest venues in Europe, an 18,000 seater. I remember watching Take That do a concert in Berlin and that showed how big they were across Europe. Sweden is where we recorded a lot of our songs, like If I Let You Go, Obvious, Unbreakable. It was a great tour - the first without Brian, so that was interesting. For us, it's a great tour to have turned into a DVD."

"Brian left on March 9 and we were going on stage on the 29th. It was fair that he went before the tour."

"It would've been disastrous if he'd done it. We never wanted to make it the Brian McFadden farewell tour. That would not have been fair on anyone."

"But we are thrilled with the results. It's a new direction for us - but one which is incredibly exciting. We all enjoy doing new things, it keeps you fresh. And this has worked out really well."

• Allow Us To Be Frank and Westlife Live In Stockholm are both on sale now.

HOMEBUYERS FIND BODY IN BEDROOM

■ by TARA FAWCETT
HORRIFIED home buyers found a decomposed body in a bedroom of their new house.

The man may have been dead for more than two years as neighbours had been complaining to the council about flies from the empty home since 2002.

Tests

But health officers refused to act because the house was privately owned. Now pathologists are running tests to find out who the mystery man was. His death is not being treated as suspicious.

The new owners bought the end terrace property in Erdington, Birmingham at auction. It is believed to have been empty for eight years and that the last occupant died in a nursing home.

But as they cleared the upstairs bedroom, workers uncovered the remains of a man.

SHOCK: The house of horror believed to be in his fifties. One neighbour, who did not want to be named, said: "The property has been a nuisance for many years."

"The smell was overwhelming. The people who were living next door actually moved away because of it."

Spotted

"The property was sold at auction a few weeks ago and the vendors had been showing people around."

The shocked neighbour added: "It is hard to believe that no-one had spotted the body earlier."

It is thought the house was owned by the daughter of the couple who previously lived there. Bigwood Auctioneers sold it for £98,000 six weeks ago.

Auctioneer Arnold Shepherd said: "We had cleared the ground floor so buyers could enter the place and have a look around. We did notice a strong stench but assumed it was from dirt and debris."

FORTUNE: Carl Wayne

Carl's £1.4m legacy

ROCK star Carl Wayne left more than £1.4million to his actress wife Sue Hanson - who played Miss Diane in Crossroads. Wayne, who sang with top Sixties group The Move, died aged 61 on August 31 after battling cancer.

The band's hit, Flowers in the Rain, was the first song played on Radio 1 on its launch in 1967.

Probate records reveal Wayne, of Woking, Surrey, left his entire estate to wife, Sue, 61. The couple had been married 30 years and have a 19-year-old son.

Hits

Sue's Crossroads character was best known for her friendship with woolly hat wearing simpleton Benny.

Wayne also had top 10 hits with I Can Hear The Grass Grow, Fire Brigade and Blackberry Way, which got to No1.

He became one of the UK's most in-demand singers and recorded countless sessions for the music and advertising industries worldwide.

In 1990, he was the narrator in Willy Russell's West End hit musical Blood Brothers. Ten years later, he joined a revived version of The Hollies and played his last gig a few weeks before his death.

A STRIPPER was hired by the family of Harold Richards to mark his 100th birthday. Ex-soldier Harold, from Fareham, Hants, said: "It was wonderful."

Drivers in dark

MOST car buyers don't know their rights against dodgy dealers.

New laws mean that garages must prove a vehicle did not have an "inherent fault" at the time of sale.

And, though dealers must sell a car of "satisfactory quality", a survey showed 73% of consumers were unaware of this.

The poll, by warranty company Warranty Direct, also revealed that only 10% of dealers explained the new laws to customers.

Analysis showed that, on average, 17.1% of owners reported a failure in the first six months.
